'61 EXPLORER

DEDICATION

We, the senior class of 1961, dedicate this edition of the Explorer to the ideal Marquette student. Every page of this book is meant to pay tribute to and emphasize the qualities of this ideal. The ideal Marquette student is studious, respectful, friendly, helpful, courteous self-sacrificing, athletic, spirited, and most of all religious. Without actually defining this goal, every "average Marquetter" strives to become an "ideal Marquetter." Thus in every field of knowledge and action, the real Explorer spirit makes itself known.

STUDENT BODY

Our ideal Marquette student with all his wonderful qualities does not exist. The average Marquetter, however, does exist. In striving after his ideal, he does have just a little more respect for a tradition of excellence, just a bit more desire to serve, just a shade more understanding of the reasons he attends a Catholic school, than does his counterpart in other schools. He is proud of his school and his school is proud of him.

SENIORS

Monica Sladek, Judy Goessling, Ruth Ann Corbin, Madeleine Bohn, Marilyn Hines, and Ruth Jackson, senior girls' officers, decorate for the Victory Dance.

Senior boys' homeroom officers, Tom Waters, Jim McPike, and Dave Kuebrich, fold the flag.

testing programs and scholarship opportunities with Mother Catherine.

Senior boys, Bob Wouk and Jim Haine leave after a talk with Father Cullen O'Brien, Diocesan Vocation Director.

Conducting an auction for Mission Day are Tom Taul, Tom Seyoc, Tom Crowson, and Paul Hurst, junior chairmen.

JUNIORS

The secretary-treasurers of the junior class do some wishful thinking at the trophy case. They are Herman Gonzales, Clyde Stewart, Pat Davcy, and John McFarlane.

Junior student council representatives, Julie Harris, Leslie Manns, Lorraine Bonafede, and Margaret Dooling pause for a moment outside the gym.

CURRICULUM

"What doth it profit a man if he shall gain the whole world and suffer the loss of his own soul?"

This quotation is most appropriate with respect to education. What good is a school which teaches a student all the knowledge the world has to offer, yet neglects to tell him how to save his own soul?

Marquette has a proper sense of values. Religion is the heart and soul of the curriculum. It permeates all areas of activity—sports, studies, even social life.

The Marquette student gives his best to everything he undertakes; he realizes that each and everything he does should be done for God's glory and the salvation of his immortal soul.

Margie Taylor, Karon Johnson, Ben Todaro, and Mike Matthews organize Room 11 students to greater efforts for the Bishop's Relief Fund.

Pat Henkhaus gives a report to a Sophomore Religion class.

RELIGION

Nancy Klasner, '61

It is spring! Glorious, vibrant, invigorating spring! A spring for spending Sunday afternoons riding with all the car windows down, for gamboling up and down the newly green hills in the park, for looking forward to the new life ahead of me. Yes, it is spring and I am a senior. That's what makes this spring the best and happiest I have ever known—being a senior. I am filled with the realization of what lies ahead of me—college, a career, maybe even marriage and a family, my whole life. Will I be happy? Will I be a success in life? I have had twelve years of Catholic education and training. Will I be able to make a practical application of this training? These questions plague me. But then along comes an invigorating spring breeze to buoy me up and make me eager to meet this challenge.

But this spring is also a time for looking back, for reminiscing, for suddenly stopping short in the middle of a garrulous, giggly good time with my friends and thinking, "This is probably the last time we'll ever be together. In a few more months we'll be scattered through about five different states with hundreds of different people." Then I ask myself, "Why does this have to end?" But I know the answer as plainly as I know my own name. We are grown up now and each of us must go his own way to work out his salvation.

I have spent a good many hours this spring engaged in indolent thoughts about the past seven months. Ring ceremony, football games. Homecoming Dance, Catholic League Championship, Christmas, Basketball games, Mission Dance—so many good times gone and so many more to come—Senior Trip, Senior Play, Prom and Graduation. This has been a full and happy year.

But then I must shake myself from my nubilous daydreams of the past and go back to work. For this has also been a hectic year. Rushing to meet the adamant deadlines of the Marquette Review (not to mention the homework assignments of no less adamant teachers), decorating for the Homecoming Dance, burning the midnight oil trying to finish a book—how well I remember all these things. And though at times I wondered if it were all worth the effort, I wouldn't trade a single one of those things now for anything else in the world, because it's spring and I'm a senior—and I love it!

Tom Pennell, '61

"It's funny," he thought, "now that I'm out of school, all I can think of is how much I'd like to be there again."

"I can even see my old classroom, as plainly as if I were sitting there now. I can even hear its sounds and almost smell its smells."

"Let's see—the radiator, an old, yellow monstrosity, spitting steam—I remember that."

"And the rough, pale green walls cracking near the ceiling—how many times I followed those interesting little cracks, instead of my lesson."

"Of course, almost surrounding the room were the ever-present blackboards. They covered three walls—the fourth. I remember was mainly windows, the old fashioned kind you open with a long window stick. But the boards, well-worn from years of use, and actually more gray than black, gave a homey, familiar, and yes—a secure feeling to the place."

"But, after all I've seen, the two things which almost bring tears in remembrance are the simple, carved crucifix which hung on the front wall, and a rather cheap, but proud copy of the stars and stripes. Oh, there were other religious articles, I remember. There was, for instance, a little altar, made from a triangular board, which was placed in the front right corner of the room. It held a few red vigil lights (which sparkled most cheerily) and a figure of the Blessed Mother. I still can see the gentleness in that porcelain face. And, there were other patriotic symbols—pictures, lithographed paintings of some of the beauties of America surrounding the room. But the crucifix and flag, in that order, dominated the room and all that went on in it."

"A massive wood desk was our teacher's repose. It was perennially covered with various papers, textbooks, etc., untidily but comfortably scattered."

"Also untidily but comfortably scattered were my classmates. They were large or small, weak or strong, girls or boys, intelligent or not; but now, after so long I remember and love them all!"

"Oh God, how I wish I could be back with them, with the old blackboard, the books, even the spitting radiator. I wish I could go back to the flag and the crucifix, back to youth and innocence. But it's too late now."

Mary Catherine Fischer, '61

As I walk through the quiet hospital corridors, I pause at Room 405. In this room, there is but one thing different from the other rooms on the floor. Death is coming; it has disguised itself behind the cloak of disease, but it is still coming.

I pause outside this room, in sheer wonder and curiosity, unable to grasp this thing called Death. It is this everyday thing of dying that makes me realize my ignorance of life and of living around me.

Why must God take innocent babies and young fathers and mothers? Why does He let planes collide and houses burn; children starve and segregationists fight? This big WHY, of death in Room 405, of disaster, of starvation, of war, is understood by God alone.

This is but a one minute phase of God's vastness; yet it proves to me my ignorance and complete dependence on Him.

ALTON

George LaBrot, '64

When I really think about Alton, I see the past, the present, and the future, for Alton is timeless.

I think of the timelessness of the people, many whose ancestors have lived here for generations, and who resist changes. I think of the people who move here and who, within a few years, feel the same way.

I think of the ancient yet ageless hills and valleys that Alton is made of—the hills where a few hundred years ago Indians roamed.

And I think of the streets. It is the streets more than any other one thing, except perhaps the river, that gives the visitor the feeling of timelessness—the quaint little brick streets that run up, down and around the hills, and go nowhere in particular.

More than anything, other than the hills, I think of the river, the mighty Mississippi that carved the bluffs right out of the surrounding land of solid rock. The river was old when Christ walked on earth, and today, if it could talk, it would tell about Indians who built huge mounds on its banks and surrounding lands.

I think of the dam that keeps the river from turning into a raging monster. Lock and Dam No. 26 is what it is called.

For industries, Alton can't be beat. It has more industries for its size than any other city in Illinois. When I think of Alton, I see fifty thousand people, working industriously, yet there is no hustle and bustle as there is in a big city.

Judy Gocssling, '61

The most prompt and efficient kind of alarm is the human alarm system. Two good examples of this system are the cheerful father and the giggling brother.

Fathers usually don't believe in late sleepers, for when they awaken at 7:30 a.m., they immediately storm cheerfully into your room and either tickle, scratch, or tap you out of your sweet slumber. If a father hears a complaint or sees his "late sleeper" turn over, he usually tears off the covers and leaves you shivering in a cold, below zero room.

I thoroughly agree with the old saying, "Like father, like son"; for a brother I know follows closely in his father's footsteps, adding a few new "waker-uppers." This brother sometimes puts his foot on the bed and literally shakes you back to reality. Have you ever been stared awake? It's no thrill, believe me, when you wake up with two beady eyes staring you down.

There must be some way in which to retaliate—but how?

THE MOST UNFORGETTABLE CHARACTER I KNOW

Jo Ann Bimslager, '63

In our neighborhood there is a young ten year old girl, who while other children are running and playing their games, sits on the sidelines and looks on. While other children are riding bikes she rides around in a wheel chair because some foolish driver was too busy to watch where he was going. Though she misses a lot by not being able to walk she is not bitter. She is always cheerful and happy and one can always count on her to do and say the right thing at the right time. She is a joy to her family, teachers and friends because she is always willing to help and do as much for them as she can. Whether she will ever walk again is up to God but until she will get along because she, though crippled, has what many able bodied people may never have—deep understanding of life and the way of God. With this understanding she takes every fortune or misfortune as it comes and faces it with courage.

VENI, VIDI, VICI

Campaign speech of Lorraine Bonafede, '62

Members of the faculty, fellow candidates and fellow students:

If I can see over this podium I would like to give my speech; if anyone cannot see me, please let me know and I will bring out my chair to stand on.

When I first came to Marquette and entered Latin class, one of the phrases I learned was that which contains the famous words of Caesar: "Veni, vidi, vici" which means "I came, I saw, I conquered." On these simple words I will base my speech.

I came. I came to Marquette, as all freshmen do, a little green and a little anxious to know how this school called Marquette would be. I came, wondering if it would be a snobby school of little cliques or a friendly one, always ready to welcome new and different students. I came, very eager to meet new faces and be in new surroundings, and yet I came reluctantly—reluctant because I dislike the idea of not being with old classmates and in familiar surroundings.

Yes, I came as a doubting freshman, but found that my doubts were soon dismissed. For I found at Marquette a student body of student bodies. It was one that didn't care how tall, fat, or thin a person was. Why I even found that Marquette would accept the so-called short students. It was a body that accepted each individual student for what he or she was.

I saw. I saw in the students of Marquette a school spirit which was so outstanding that it was well-known in the area as the "best." Yes, I saw, as every student at Marquette sees, a school that would go all out for any good cause, whether it be Candy Drive, Mission Day, or Community Chest. I also saw at Marquette a student body that chose Student Council officers on ability, rather than on popularity. It was a student body that knew how to look behind all the campaign slogans and posters and see the candidates for what they really were.

Yes, I came and I saw Marquette. But no one can conquer Marquette or its spirit, for they, Marquette and its spirit, being one and the same, must conquer each and every student.

For Marquette can be great only if its students are great. And the students can be great only if they have good leaders. The Student Council officers are your leaders. So when you vote, vote for the persons who you think will help you and your school to maintain and develop its famous spirit. Vote for those you think will lead Marquette to true greatness.

TEMPER

Thomas Clifford Holden, '62

Temper is rebellious and passionate you see,
And should be controlled by both you and me.
Temper can be a good, self protective thing,
A blessing and joy to your life will bring.
Temper uncontrolled may cause grievous sin,
That locks the gates of heaven and all therein.
Temper may form a real mental block,
And check the good that you have sought.

Temper, the opposite of humility,
A virtue that develops true piety.
Humility, a virtue too hard to find.
Grants to a person peace of mind.
Humility a gift of Christ Himself,
Is the cornerstone of spiritual health.
Humility takes fortitude, as some would call,
To admit you were wrong, to the taunts of all.
Although temper is rebellious and passionate you see,
It can be controlled by both you and me.

GOLF

Thomas Tueth, '64

A golfer is a funny man
Wandering round the course,
Dragging a set of clubs alone.
I know of nothing worse.

I have to laugh when I see him swing
And completely miss the ball;
But I must frown at the big, big words
That come from one so small.

He sometimes hits the poor ball straight,
And again it sometimes curves.
He knows not where the ball will go.

Some men play golf most every day,
To them it must be fun,
Walking in the scorching heat,
And burning in the sun.

ACTIVITIES and ORGANIZATIONS

In extracurricular activities, the Marquette student has a chance to show his varied talents. He joins organizations to find expression for his many interests, yet not so many that his other duties are forgotten.

Ideally, also, the Marquette boy or girl considers the contribution to be of greater importance than the personal gain or glory. He takes his greatest satisfaction from making Marquette "just a little bit better."

Thus he acquires the qualities of reliability and self-sacrifice which both improve him as a person and immeasurably enrich his later life. The activity itself is not of great importance; participation in it is important, for this improves both the individual and the school.

SODALITY

Officers in the Ursuline Alumnae Association who were present for the Convention are: Miss Kathleen Gorman, general chairman; Mrs. Walter Riley, keynote speaker at the luncheon; Mother Columba of New Orleans, Louisiana, moderator of the Ursuline Alumnae Association; Reverend Mother Joan of Arc, honorary president; Miss Helen Whalen, president of the Marquette Alumnae Association; Reverend Mother Victorine, superior of the Alton Community; and Mother Carmelita, moderator.

TRANSFER STUDENTS:
Veronica Daly, George Fish, and Cora Plumb.

ATHLETICS

Athletics have always held an important place in Marquette's curriculum. Everyone knows about the really great athletes who have been produced here, but just as important are the hundreds of not-so-talented youngsters who here learned the lessons of fair play and sacrifice.

Ideally every student should gain from the school's athletic program. At Marquette this ideal comes unusually close to achievement. Everyone has a chance to make use of his abilities, for sports here are not "spectator" sports.

The ideal student will be possessed of rather great talents, but he will use sports to develop both his body and his mind. Exercise can be an important stimulant, a guard against mental "staleness."

The Marquette student studies better, thinks clearer, and grows healthier mentally and physically through participation in athletics.

MARQUETTE GRIDDERS

VARSITY—FRONT: Paul Dunker, Bob Melton, Jim Wardein, Larry Crivello, Jim McCloskey, Joe Eichorn, Mark Haynes, Tom Bohn, Bob Wouk. Absent: Bob Eichorn.

1960 FOOTBALL SEASON

HADLEY TECH.	6	M.H.S.	20
ALTON	18	M.H.S.	6
LABOURE	6	M.H.S.	21
ST. VINCENT'S	6	M.H.S.	6
ST. LOUIS U.	25	M.H.S.	19
CHAMINADE	0	M.H.S.	47
VALLE	20	M.H.S.	26
CATHEDRAL	6	M.H.S.	13
VIANNEY	6	M.H.S.	39

The Explorers opened their 1960 football season against St. Vincent's of Perryville. Although the boys did not lose this game their hopes for winning the Catholic League were dampened by a tie score. However, in the next league game, the Explorers, playing like a championship team, rolled over Chaminade 47-0. Later, because of many mistakes, the Blue Boys squeezed out a bare 26-20 victory over Valle of St. Genevieve. The following Saturday they faced a powerful Belleville Cathedral team which Marquette had not beaten since 1955. The winner of this game would carry home the Catholic League trophy. The Explorers, again playing as champions, defeated the Crusaders 13-6 and felt confident of the title. The following week they ran roughshod over Vianney of Kirkwood with a score 39-6. This clinched the Catholic League title. The record breaking Explorer Grid team scored 131 points while holding their league foes to a meager 38 points.

Bob Melton makes a diving tackle on a St. Vincent back while Jim McPike waits to lend a helping hand.

Swamped by three Vianney players, Earl Gross gives up all hope.

LEAGUE GAMES

Mark Haynes outplays two Chaminade players and goes all the way on a touchdown jaunt.

Joe Eichorn picks up short yardage against Valle High. Player on the ground is his cousin, Bob Eichorn.

Tom Bohn catches a Joe Eichorn pass for a touchdown against Hadley Tech.

Earl Gross fumbles as Phil Hinderberger comes up to recover.

VARIOUS SHOTS

Tom Bohn skirts right end for a gain against Chaminade.

"The one that got away!"
